KEW GARDENS COLLECTION MULTI FUNCTION TURRET SPRINKLER

Greg Redwood, Head of Great Glasshouses and Horticultural Training at the Royal Botanic Gardens Kew says "This sprinkler is by far the best of it's type I've used - the heavy metal base makes it sit flatter than plastic ones, and it seems more robust. I like the windmill rotor as it breaks the stream of water into random drops which fall across the area being watered rather than just at the edges."

- Dial settings for 9 different watering patterns
- Stable metal base
- Control rotor retracts to protect the mechanism when not in use
- Male brass connector included
- Suitable for up to 8bar water pressure
